Quotations

1) There is a definite demarcation of Indian politics between secular and non-secular forces. If any body claims and belongs to the former, he can't flirt with the latter. Riding two horses is not only bad for political health but also very confusing to the electorate.

Congress spokesman, Abhishek Manu Singhvi

2) The rationing has to be at home. It is parents who have to decide what their young ones should watch and what they shouldn't on TV.

My kids don't see cartoons or sex-baked serials all they watch is national TV and news and they are off to bed by 8 p.m.

- TV actor Smriti Tibhi Droni -

Quotations

"I do believe that, where there is a choice between cowardice and violence, I would advise violence. I would rather have India to resort to arms in order to defend her honour than that she should, in a cowardly manner, become or remain a helpless witness to her own dishonour." — Mahatma Gandhi

"It was better to jump into the uncharted seas of action and do something rather than ^{be} the same objects of a malignant ¹ fate." — Jawahar Lal Nehru.
